- Improve existing graphical features and inspire the development of new ones
- Anticipate complex problems + propose adapted solutions, considering the entire production pipeline
- Explore new hardware and deal with the interesting challenges and opportunities it poses
- Stay up to date on the latest tech trends and techniques + recommend our best practices

What you bring:

- An undergraduate degree in Computer Science, Computer Engineering, or equivalent
- Around 3 years of graphics programming experience (for video-game consoles a huge plus) or related experience
- Proficiency in C++
- Analytical and mathematical skills
- Knowledge of GPUs, HLSL, and modern graphics APIs (e.g. DirectX 12 and Vulkan) + understanding of game engines and their limitations
- A thorough grasp of memory management & multithreaded programming techniques
- Solid interpersonal and presentation skills & the ability to clearly communicate cross-departmentally

- A long-term approach to problem-solving (if the solution isn't sustainable, it simply won't do)
- A collaborative and innovative spirit
- Willingness to continue learning – new technologies, engines, rendering techniques, programming languages, you name it
